Dear Mike

I am writing of course to firstly thank you and Mark for taking the time to visit us. I must also thank you for the fantastic total of £1034.94 from the go carting made in support of our work with the young disabled people who live and study here at Treloar School and College.

This is such an important time in the long history of Treloar's. Our small fundraising team here has been flat out trying to raise the funds for "Vision" or to you guys the co locating of School and College on to one site at Holybourne to protect our future.

Through good and more difficult times we are acutely aware that we can only supply the services and equipment we need to because of kind and loyal supporters, which you have now very definitely become. All the donations we receive joined together become hugely significant in value for us.

"Vision" aside Treloar's has to provide a huge range of equipment and services, like every charity with funds at a premium we do of course have to prioritise so we get the things that are most important for the young people here.

I have in previous letters described the equipment or services that donations help us purchase for the young people. However at a more human level and to give you and all who made this gift possible an example of just how much of an impact donations like this can have.

I would like to tell you of Jim, a student who has been with us for 5 years now at School, he came to Treloar's with little speech he was very shy and a wheelchair user.

This year Jim passed his exams and will go to College, he has been selected for the England Boccia team (sort of bowls) has just starred in the end of year School Play and was elected Head Boy in his final year at School.

Jim has grown into a decent capable and very intelligent young man, a likable chap with goals and aspirations like every other teenager. Thinking of a time beyond Treloar's when he can return to his community and make a contribution through a fulfilling life with his friends and family

Donations do have an impact, on behalf of all at Treloar's thanks to everyone for your support.

Sincerely,

Jon Colville
